

International Summer School on Language Documentation and Description

Leiden University, 5 – 17 July, 2010

The Leiden University Centre for Linguistics (LUCL) is proud to host the third 3L International Summer School on Language Documentation and Description 5 - 17 July 2010.

Registration is now open! Register by April 25 for reduced fees!

The 3L Summer School draws upon the extensive expertise of the 3L Consortium: University of Lyon, Leiden University, and the School of Oriental and African Studies, London. This year's summer school has been funded with the additional help of the Leiden University Centre for Linguistics as well as the Max Planck Institute for Evolutionary Anthropology, Leipzig.

The 2010 3L Summer School offers a variety of courses and activities on all aspects of language documentation and description for both future and novice field linguists including:

- ⊖ Practical training in fieldwork methods and grammar writing
- ⊖ Recording techniques and software for documentation, description, and archiving
- ⊖ Courses on sign-language documentation and endangered sign-languages
- ⊖ Courses on languages found in Central and South America, Indonesia, Africa, and the Caucasus
- ⊖ A student conference will be held on Saturday 10 July, where students will be able to present their ideas or research and receive feedback from their instructors and fellow peers.
- ⊖ Evening events where students can network and enjoy activities such as Sign Language Poetry, film screenings, and more

For more information, please visit the 2010 3L Summer School website located at <http://www.hrelp.org/events/3L/leiden2010/index.html>.

The 3L Summer School in 2010 will be followed by the Leiden Summer School in Languages and Linguistics, which will take place in the second half of July.
